Re: In the Matter of Petition of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I am a consumer who supports broadband competition. I am deeply concerned about the lack of choice available to consumers for broadband internet. I am especially concerned, after recent moves to eliminate protections for consumer data, and the unilateral end to net neutrality, that the only ISPs available to me will collect and resell my data, and degrade access to sites I might wish to visit, or services I might wish to use.

I don't want cable. I want a landline, for emergencies, and broadband internet access for everything else. I want to conduct business with a provider who shares my values, and I don't want to be forced to pay for bundled services I will not use. Nor do I want my browsing habits to be shaped or exploited by my ISP.

There is, plain and simple, insufficient competition among ISPs as it is. I want to see more competition, not less. And I want to see net neutrality and privacy protections restored.
